Each year the Philadelphia Business Journal recognizes impactful partnerships between two organizations that are benefiting the Greater Philadelphia community. For 2025, we are recognizing 25 such partnerships that are supporting an array of causes like food and housing insecurity, education, literacy, workforce development and health care.

An annual special publication, Partners in Philanthropy predominately recognizes the partnerships between for-profit businesses and nonprofit organizations, while also considering the impact between two nonprofits, particularly foundations supporting the work of local entities.

To determine this year's list, we sought nominations from the public, receiving more than four dozen. Our editorial board reviewed each partnership, taking into consideration the scope of the relationship and the impact of the work on the community such as the amount of money donated to a cause, the number of volunteer hours served, as well as the number of people who benefited from the partnership.

To be considered, the organizations involved must have a presence within Greater Philadelphia.

New this year, we are also recognizing Faces of Philanthropy, a celebration of the individuals championing causes in the region. These individuals will be revealed on Wednesday.

We'll celebrate all 25 of these partnerships as well as the Faces of Philanthropy recipients at an April 10 event at the Weitzman National Museum of American Jewish History in Old City Philadelphia. Individual tickets for the event will be available starting in March. Each partnership and honoree will also be profiled in a special edition of the Business Journal publishing April 11.
